MAKING THEM HAPPY

JUMPIN' JOE OF CHEROKEE SCORES A GREAT SUCCESS.

He Opens Up In the Town of Jeffersonville, and With the Mayor on His Side He Introduces His Panoramy to a Wildly Enthusiastic Audience.

On Wednesday afternoon last I pitched my tent and hung out my signs in the young and straggling town of Jeffersonville. I had scarcely got my grand aggregation under cover when the mayor appeared and said:

"It is my official duty to inquire if this is a moral show?"

"Sho he," sez I. "While I am nothin' but a humble worm of the dust, nuthin' could induce me to travel about with an exhibition unless I had a moral show."

"Has yer panoramy lated to corrupt got its clothes on?" the morals of the population of Cherokee.

"Has yer panoramy got its clothes on?" "Sho has. Nuthin' will be found about that panoramy to injure anybody's feelings."

"What is yer pertickler obijck in showin' in this show?" sez he as he picks up a stick and scratches the back of my educated hog in a fatherly way.

"Firstly, to amuse, instruct and make the world better, and, secondly, to call attention to my Cherokee susceptibility and Magic cement, two family remedies which should be found in every household."

"Do ye deliver a lecture in conjunction with that panoramy?"

"I do. That lecture alone is worth walkin' ten miles to hear."

"It is my official duty to inquire if that is any joke in that lecture?" We are a struggling people, and richness is not for us, but we have a reputashun to sustain."

I solemnly assured him that that was not a joke in it from beginnin' to end, and to convince him of the fact I repeated most of the lecture. When he was satisfied of the integrity of my cause, his eyes filled with tears, and he pressed my hand and said:

"Feller critter, 'tis well! Go right ahead and show yer varchewness exhibition, and I'll do all I kin on the outside to make the same a bountiful success."

As usual, there was no charge for admission, which is one of the strongest points of my exhibition.

The news circulated around that nuthin' was to be exhibited to offend the most innocent babe, and as a consequence the audience was an overflowin' one and in the best of spirits.

The mayor was not "INTERDOOCEED ME TO" only that, and on a front seat, but when the show was ready to open he riz up and interdooced me to the multitude in a way to teach the human heart.

He referred to the kuss who had struck that town with a patent washin' machine and left wreck and ruin behind, to
